

THE POLL

FOR THE ELECTION

Sup
OF

TWO REPRESENTATIVES in PARLIAMENT

FOR THE

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE.

On SATURDAY, Sept. 9, 1780.

CANDIDATES.

LORD HYDE
HON. MR. WILLIAM PITT
HON. MR. J. TOWNSHEND

JAMES MANSFIELD, Esq.
SOLICITOR GENERAL
R. CROFTES, Esq.

CAMBRIDGE.

PRINTED BY FRANCIS HODSON,

SOLD BY THE BOOKSELLERS IN CAMBRIDGE; ALSO BY J. ALMON
IN PICCADILLY, H. PAYNE IN PALL-MALL, G. KEARSLEY IN LUD-GATE-STREET, S. CROWDER IN PATERNOSTER-ROW, AND BY RICHARDSON AND URQUHART UNDER THE ROYAL EXCHANGE, LONDON.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

ERRATUM. Mr. Penneck, of Trinity college, is put, by mistake, among the voters of Peter House. Mr. Penneck, of Peter House, did not vote.

A D V E R T I S E M E N T.

WHETHER this nation, weighed down with debts and taxes, and waging unequal war, without allies*, against France, Spain and America, totters on the brink of ruin; and whether her perilous situation ought to be ascribed to the present administration; are points which some few persons pretend to dispute. But granting that their arguments are convincing, and this gloomy prospect to be ideal, one would think that even those few must allow, that the three following regulations would certainly tend, if not to preserve, at least to retard the destruction of our freedom: though from the conduct of the last parliament it is very seriously to be feared, that, like the penances in the primitive church, they are rather much to be wished for †, than expected to be put in practice.

The first of them is a more equal representation, the necessity of which every person must allow who has seen the absurdity of the present, so strongly pointed out in the report of the Westminster Sub-Committee. The second is to shorten parliaments from seven to at least three years; and the third, to guard as much as possible against corruption, patronage, and undue and secret influence in the electors and elected. To give some small check to this last seems to be a sufficient reason why all polls should be published. For as the mode of election by polling was in the origin of our liberties preferred to that by ballot, in order that every one might judge of the principles and form conjectures of the motives of each elector; so whatever serves to render these enquiries more easy, extensive and determinate, is agreeable to the spirit of the constitution. In the university this reason has a particular force, from the peculiar manner of voting. In other places the voter is called upon publicly to say for whom he polls before many witnesses, some of whom are purposely employed to take down the votes: but in the university the elector carries up to the Vicechancellor (who is the returning officer) the names of the candidates he votes for, written on a slip of paper, and scarce any person present (the Vicechancellor and two or three who stand in scrutiny with him excepted) knows any thing of the matter. After the return is made, the votes are given to the Registry, and few persons in the University trouble themselves to make any enquiry afterwards, and still fewer out of it. This, amongst other reasons, may be alledged for the present publication, which hardly needs any explanation. It contains two alphabetical lists; the first, of those who voted at the late election, and the second, of those who did not, and both together make a complete list of the members of the senate as they stand at present; and it is hoped that they are pretty free from errors, particularly the poll-list. Bishops, Peers, and minors, that are members of the senate, have no votes on this occasion, and the term commorans in villâ, is applied to a person who ceases to be a member of any college, and without quitting the university lives in the town.

It has been suggested to the writer of this advertisement, that the publication of this poll might offend some persons in the university. To which he answers, that he has made no comment on any person's vote; that he neither fears the resentment nor values the friendship of any elector who is ashamed that the world should know in what manner he voted; and that  if truth be offensive, he cares not if in speaking truth he offends them all.*

October 10, 1780.
